Overview

The Klarna Advertising Guidelines provide guidance on the type of content allowed to run on all of the Klarna domains and properties. All content for each advertising campaign should be reviewed against these guidelines. It is the advertiser’s duty and responsibility to understand and comply with these guidelines and any other applicable laws and regulations. These guidelines ensure that Klarna maintains a user-friendly experience that is customer-focused. At Klarna, we believe maintaining high marketing standards drives results for Advertiser’s while protecting Klarna and the Advertiser’s brand.

Klarna uses automated and manual reviews to review all content against these guidelines. Klarna reserves the right, in its sole discretion, at any time, to remove, reject or request changes to any content that may not adhere to these guidelines, or might otherwise violate any marketing rules, regulations, or standards. Klarna's review process may not identify all violations, and therefore, all content is subject to continuous review. If you have any concerns regarding content that is to be used in an advertising campaign, please reach out to your client support team. Klarna reserves the right to make changes to these guidelines so please check this document often to ensure you are always up to date on the latest requirements.

1.0 Core Creative Guidelines

1.1 Maintaining High Creative Standards

To ensure a consistent, high-quality customer experience, Klarna applies high creative standards to all advertising content. The below guidelines in this section serve to identify and ensure all ads adhere to the minimum quality requirements.

1.2 Merchant Branding

The merchant's name and/or logo must be clearly visible in the ad to ensure customers can easily identify them as the advertiser. If the ad features a merchant name as well as a logo or sub-brand, the merchant parent name or logo must be the largest and most prominent. Refrain from using "we", "our" or other similar language as this may cause customer confusion and may give the impression that the ad or deal is by Klarna rather than the Merchant.

1.3 Distracting Creative

Animated creative (not currently supported) within ads must improve the advertising experience and not unnecessarily distract customers. Some prohibited animated features include:

- Flashing or pulsing elements
- Fast or frequent transitions
- Animation that mimics user interaction

1.4 Image Quality

All images provided must meet the minimum file size, resolution, and file type restrictions provided in the Klarna ad specs. Images that are blurry, pixelated, distorted or that have too many visual objects may be rejected for failing to meet the standards set out in these guidelines

1.5 Landing Page Quality

The URL the ad links to should be consistent with the ad and allow the customer to find what they are looking for when they click through. The landing page should not require the customer to take an action, such as signing up (unless it is a clear call to action in the ad), before they can see content, have pop-up ads or start an automatic download on the customer's device, require the customer to click to another page, or contain primarily advertising content.

2.0 Advertising Copy

All copy must be legible, clear, and accurate so the customer has sufficient and factual information prior to engaging with the ad.

2.1 Prices and Savings Claims

If an ad promotes a percentage savings, such as 10% off, the landing page should reflect the exact same offer (10% off) and not just the money savings. Please refer to section 2.5 for guidance on individually discounted products. If the offer is only available for a selected range of products, this should be specified in the copy/ad itself to prevent customers from being misled into thinking the offer applies to all products for that merchant. Offers that use seasonal messaging should only be used during the relevant promotional period, such as "Mother's Day offers", "Easter Deals" or "Back-to-School offers." If the offer has a start and end date, those dates should be provided in the copy or offer terms and conditions. The landing page for the offer must also include any additional exclusions, limitations, or terms that are necessary for the customer to be fully informed regarding what is being offered.

2.2 Claims and Substantiation

Any copy considered to be a superlative claim should be accurate and substantiated. If a product is stated to be "new" or "latest season", it must be a new and recent release.

2.3 Call To Action (CTA)

A clear and concise CTA should be used to inform the customer of the expected user journey after clicking on the ad. A CTA is not always required when on the Klarna website or mobile app, however it is advised for larger placements, such as hero placements or larger banners that have less restrictive space. Some examples of a CTA can include: "Learn more", "Shop now", "Use code", "Book now".

2.4 Language

All copy and CTAs in ads should be in the primary language of the locale in which they appear. Klarna advises against using aggressive language or language that creates a sense of urgency for purchasing, such as "Hurry" or "Offer ends soon." Customers should not be encouraged to spend outside of their means. The ad should further not suggest or imply that a product is available if that product is not actually available at that time, or sold out. Using phrases such as 'strapped for cash?', 'don't wait until payday' or 'broke AF' are prohibited and conflict with Klarna's commitment to a user-friendly and customer-focused experience. All copy should use proper grammar and spelling. Also see Sections 4 and 5.

2.5 Price Reductions

Any announcement of a price reduction/discount for a specific product should follow applicable laws and indicate the prior price. The prior price means the lowest price available for that product during a period of time not shorter than 30 days prior to the application of the price reduction.

2.6 Promotion of Credit

Promotion of credit (regulated or non-regulated) is subject to additional legal requirements and disclosures. The promotion of credit is subject to targeting restrictions and may not be targeted to groups based on age, gender, or postal code. More information and requirements per market can be found here. The Merchant must obtain Klarna's prior approval prior to promoting credit of any kind.

2.7 Deal and Promotion Terms

If an ad includes a deal or promotion, the essential terms and conditions for such a deal or promotion should be clearly and conspicuously presented either in the ad itself, or available on the landing page one click away. Essential terms and conditions may include the maximum available discount amount, minimum spending limit, or restrictions on available dates, and any other information which could affect the customer's decision to make a purchase.

3.0 Animation and Video

All requirements in these guidelines also apply to animation and video content. Animation and video content must be reviewed and approved by Klarna.
